SISTER

Sibling retro rockers Haim step onto a bigger stage

ACT

◆ LONG BEFORE THEY toured with Mumford & Sons and triumphed at South by Southwest, Alana, Este, and Danielle Haim (pictured, from left) were three Valley Village sisters playing with Mom and Dad in a band called Rockinhaim. “It was something we did to bring our family together,” says Este. The trio have shortened their moniker—just Haim, please—and solidified their sound: a blend of gritty rock and sultry R&B set off by Alana’s keyboard, guitar, and maracas; Este’s bass; and Danielle’s lead guitar. They’ve finally channeled their energy into a debut album in which sisterhood emerges as not just powerful but harmonious.
